House:

The dwelling is constructed out of hardwood and features 3 bedrooms, and bathroom/laundry combination. The eat-in kitchen and the living area are lined with vertical hardwood boards milled on the property. There is a shady verandah on the eastern side which provides outdoor entertaining space. Hanging Rock has cool climate with occasional snow falls in winter. The wood fire will make your winters cosy.

Outbuildings:

There is an old timber shed which has a car parking space, a working area and 4 small rooms used as sleeping quarters. The previous owner used to run horse riding tours. There is also a small garden shed for all your gardening tools.

Gardens:

The former gardens waiting for the new owner with a green thumb to bring them back to life. There is no orchard on the property but all European plants grow very well here, especially apples, pears, berries and plums. Hanging Rock has fertile basalt soil.

Water:

The 22500L rain water tank is equipped with the pump and provides the water for the house. With Hanging Rock's high rainfall of 1200mm per year that is more than sufficient. For the gardens, there are 3 and a half dams. Why "and a half"? The fourth dam is shared with the neighbour, just make sure you take the water from your half only! Jokes aside, the main dam is so large you could call it a small lake.
