Sleepy Serenity

If you're looking for peace and quiet, then this property is for you. Located on a cul-de-sac in sleepy Wondecla the loudest residents are the birds. Winding your way down through the trees and past the old workshop you approach the home. Intriguing from the start the carport opens onto the veranda which overlooks the white gums leading down to the North Wondecla Creek which marks the back of the property. The trees have been selectively cleared to allow a wonderful balance of light to penetrate, giving a forever-changing ambience to the property.

Inside there are five spacious bedrooms including the master which boasts its own private balcony with an enviable view. The high ceilings throughout give a tremendous sense of space and the timber beams have a warm country home vibe. The house is fully insulated and features air-conditioning so the temperature will never be an issue.

Your days could be spent tending to the vegetable gardens, tinkering in the workshop or enjoying a barbeque on the veranda of an afternoon and spotting the wallabies between the trees.
