The original cottage has been lovingly transformed from a 90sqm abode into a 245sqm architecturally designed masterpiece where old meets new in a wonderful way. An eclectic blend of antique pieces and rustic features combine to create a treat for the senses.

Every inch of this luxurious haven tells a story. The former silky oak benchtops have been made into bookshelves and fretwork has been included as a nod to the home's history. In the garden room, polished concrete floors are on show, paired with a Glasshouse granite wall installed by a Scottish stonemason.

Oversized sliding timber panels open this space to the gardens to welcome the outside in. There is room for an outdoor kitchen and dining suite or you can flow out to the paved patio and dine alfresco throughout spring and summer.

Any avid foodie will adore the designer kitchen that offers a seamless blend of life-enhancing appliances and warm finishes. You can show off your culinary skills as your friends relax at the large island or take a seat in the living room set under a soaring timber beamed ceiling.

The bedrooms are just as impeccably finished, including the plush owner's suite with a sky-high ceiling, plantation shutters, a walk-in robe and French doors that open out to a sunny patio. The secondary bedroom is light-filled and spacious, set in its own wing with the study, laundry and central bathroom.

When friends come to share in their piece of paradise, there is a one-bedroom, one-bathroom cottage with an open-plan living space and a wonderful deck with a sensational outlook and could be used as a managers accommodation. Don't miss your chance to make this hinterland gem your very own.
